1. Programme Title

Master of Arts in Literary and Cultural Studies (MALCS)

The degree of Master of Arts in Literary and Cultural Studies (MALCS) is a postgraduate degree awarded for the satisfactory completion of the study in Literary and Cultural Studies offered by the Department of Comparative Literature at the University of Hong Kong.

2. Programme Overview

The MALCS programme introduces students to a wide range of theoretical, literary and filmic texts, exploring historical and contemporary issues within frames of modernity and globalization. An interdisciplinary approach is adopted in the programme; all courses are informed by critical and cultural theory, and the study of film and literature engages the perspectives of post-structuralism, deconstructionism, psychoanalysis, phenomenology, feminism, postmodernism, Marxism, post-colonialism and eco-criticism. At the end of their studies, students are expected to complete a capstone experience that contributes to the body of knowledge within the context of liberal studies and humanistic inquiry.

We have the following objectives for our students:

- i) To broaden and deepen students' knowledge of cultural theories and different approaches in literature, film and cultural studies.
 - ii) To cultivate critical thinking through engagement with the key debates in literary, film, and cultural studies.
 - iii) To encourage appreciation of diverse cultural practices and contexts within a global frame, with emphasis on but not limited to those of Hong Kong, modern Chinese and Asian cultures.
 - iv) To develop skills in critical analysis necessary to carry out independent research in the field of literary, film and cultural studies.
 - v) To provide the knowledge and enhance the skills required for advanced degrees.

3. Length of Programme

The MALCS programme is designed to be completed by full-time students in one academic year; part-time students in two academic years. Each academic year comprises of two semesters: Semester 1 (Fall) and Semester 2 (Spring). Semester 1 normally commences in September and ends in December, while Semester 2 normally commences in January and ends in May. Exact starting and ending dates of a semester shall be prescribed by the School Senate.

Courses in our programme are primarily offered during weekdays evening from 6:30PM to 9:30PM. Occasionally, courses may be offered on weekday afternoons and Saturday mornings.

4. Completion of Programme

To complete the MALCS programme, students are required to:

- i) take a total of SEVEN courses (one core course and six electives) with no less than 85% attendance in any one course, and complete satisfactorily all prescribed coursework including workshops and written assignments;
 - ii) complete a capstone experience (15 credits) in the form of a satisfactory dissertation of approximately 10,000 words, portfolio or individual project on a subject derived from their course of study.

5. Course Selection and Registration & MA Course List

Students shall select their courses in accordance with the “MALCS Course Selection and Registration Instructions” before the beginning of each semester. Generally, Semester 1 course registration will take place in August, while Semester 2 course registration will take place in December. Specific dates of commencement and completion of the registration period shall be prescribed by the Programme Committee. Requests for changes after the designated registration period will not be considered. Random course registration would be performed for students who fail to follow the instructions.

Students are encouraged to pursue either a LITERARY AND CULTURAL STUDIES stream, or a FILM/SCREEN STUDIES stream within the Programme. Students are also allowed to not pursue any specific stream.

LITERARY AND CULTURAL STUDIES stream elective courses:

Students are encouraged to select any 3 from the following: CLIT7006, CLIT7007, CLIT7008, CLIT7009, CLIT7010, CLIT7011, CLIT7013, CLIT7016, CLIT7018, CLIT7020, CLIT7023, CLIT7024, CLIT7025, CLIT7027.

FILM/SCREEN STUDIES stream elective courses:

Students are encouraged to select any 3 from the following: CLIT7007, CLIT7014, CLIT7016, CLIT7019, CLIT7020, CLIT7021, CLIT7022, CLIT7023, CLIT 7027.

Students are required to declare their choice of stream (or not declaring) by the start of the second semester of their academic study. Any request for subsequent change in stream after declaration shall be approved by the Programme Chairperson.

Core course is offered in the first semester of each academic year.

Electives on offer may vary with the academic year.

Creative Practices and Experiential Learning courses are year-long courses. Students can only choose ONE 3-credit course with prior approval.

Please refer to Appendix A for a detailed description on the above courses.

6. Course Materials

Course materials, including the course syllabus and schedule, are available at the beginning of each course. Students might need to purchase at their own expenses additional textbooks for individual courses.

Soft copies of course readings for certain courses may be uploaded on Moodle. Moodle is an online platform for sharing e-copies of course materials, videos, and for virtual meeting/discussion. You may gain access to Moodle via HKU portal in the “E-Learning” section. The Moodle page for each course is open to students who have been enrolled in the course. The use of Moodle depends on the practice of Course Instructor.

Concerning the use of course materials, the programme adopts the University’s policy on copyright. Generally speaking, students should note that all course materials (including lecture notes, handouts and reading materials uploaded on Moodle for circulation) supplied by the programme are to be used for the purposes of private study and research only.

Lectures delivered in the programme may not be recorded without explicit consent from the course instructor: As copyright of each lecture is vested in the instructor delivering it and/or the University. Should recording of lecture be permitted, it must be subject to any conditions which are stipulated at the time of granting permission. Failure to observe this warning may result in an infringement of the copyright laws. Consult the University website for detailed information about the Copyright Ordinance: <http://lib.hku.hk/copyright/index.html>

7. Coursework Assessment

Students will be assessed for each of the courses for which they have registered. All courses will be examined by 100% continuous assessment on any combination of coursework and/or written assignments as detailed in the course syllabus.

The course instructor reserves the right to adjust the above assessment ratios as deemed appropriate. Students should note that they must complete all required major assignments to pass the course, regardless of the grade.

Students should note that only satisfactorily completed courses will earn credits. Grades are awarded in accordance with TPG 9(a) of the Regulations for Taught Postgraduate Curricula. Letter Grades and Grade Points will be recorded on the transcript of academic record.

Please refer to Appendix B for General Expectations of Student Performance and Appendix C for the Grading System.

8. Checking of Assessment Results

All assessment results of courses and examinations are determined by the Board of Examiners (BoE) after careful scrutiny and deliberation by the examiners concerned and the relevant subject/departmental/Faculty committee(s). Given the strict review process adopted, the BoE decisions on assessment results are final. There shall be no appeal against the results of examinations and all other forms of assessment.

Notwithstanding this, students may request checking of the final course grade or the result of any assessment component of any course if they have reason to believe that there is any procedural irregularity or technical error in the determination of that result (e.g. an error in the recording, collating or aggregation of grades/marks which contribute to the final result).

Such checking is not and does not entail academic re-assessment of the materials or coursework presented by the student. In other words, appeal against the academic judgment of the examiners will not be entertained.

An application for checking of procedural irregularity or technical error, together with the receipt of fee payment, should be submitted by the student as soon as possible after the release of the assessment result, and in any case must reach the Arts Faculty Office no later than two weeks after the publication of the course's final assessment result as determined by the BoE.

Procedures for Checking of Assessment Results of Taught Courses:

9. Orientation Week

The MALCS Orientation starts from 25 August 2023 and ends on 31 August 2023 for all Year 1 students. Students are required to register and join all the scheduled activities.

25 – 26 August 2023 Writing Workshop

28 August 2023 MALCS Orientation

29 August 2023 Library Essentials for Postgraduate Students Online Course

30 August 2023 MALCS Capstone Workshop

31 August 2023 Introduction to MALCS Symposium INEQUALITY ON FILM

10. Capstone Experience (Dissertation / Portfolio / Individual Project)

Students who have received B+ grade (3.3 grade point) or above in 4 or more courses, and with the approval by the chairperson of the Committee for the MA in Literary and Cultural Studies, may present a dissertation of approximately 10,000 words or an individual project accompanied by a written report of around 5,000 words as partial fulfilment of the requirement for the MA degree. Successful dissertations, to be lodged in the Library, shall be subject to correction of typographical, grammatical and/ or other errors as determined by the examiners. Student who opt for dissertation writing must take the elective "CLIT7012 Dissertation Seminar". Students who opt for portfolio and individual project must attend the session(s) or workshop(s) on their work process.

For other students, they can have the following option:

- To compile a portfolio of coursework for the MA curriculum. Students choosing the Portfolio option are required to revise at least two previous MALCS papers and turn them into a final paper of approximately 10,000 words.

Students who opt for portfolio/ individual project must take a regular course in lieu of CLIT7012.

For full-time students, the dissertation/ portfolio/ individual project must be submitted by August 1 in the academic year of study and its title should be submitted for approval by March 1 of that year.

For part-time students, the dissertation/ portfolio/ individual project must be submitted by August 1 in the second academic year of study and its title should be submitted for approval by March 1 of that year.

Please refer to Appendix D for Guidelines for Portfolio and Individual Project.

11. Unsatisfactory Performance of Studies

i) Late Submission/ Extension of Submission Deadline

Students are required to submit their coursework assignments, dissertations/ portfolios/ individual projects, and any other works assigned by their course instructors on the due dates prescribed in the course syllabi that are distributed at the beginning of each semester. Due dates will be set to allow students sufficient time to complete their work before the deadline.

Students can apply for a 2-day extension for one assignment in the same course during a semester. The student must notify the instructor one week before the assignment is due, and must keep to the new due date. (Work commitment is not a valid reason for exemption from the late assignment policy. A medical reason for late submission should be accompanied by a valid doctor's letter. Besides notifying the instructor, the doctor's letter shall be sent to the MALCS office c/o Programme Officer.)

Late submissions including those after the extended due date will be subjected to grade deduction.

ii) Re-submission and Re-assessment

Students who have failed in not more than two courses in an academic year may be permitted to re-submit their work for the failed course(s) for re-assessment within a specified period of time determined by the MA Board of Examiners. Students should note that they will not be allowed to retake or take another course to make up for the failed course. The failure in courses shall be recorded on the transcript, together with the new assessment result obtained from re-assessment.

Students who have presented a Dissertation/Portfolio/Individual Project which is unsatisfactory may be permitted to revise and re-submit their work within a specified period of time determined by the MA Board of Examiners.

(Repeating fee and re-assessment fee will be charged when a student is required/ permitted to repeat a course/courses or to be re-assessed for a course/courses outside the normative study period.)

12. Attendance and Absence

Students should attend all classes as prescribed for individual courses. An attendance rate of 85% or above is required to pass the course. Attendance and class participation will contribute to the overall assessment. Course instructors shall maintain attendance records for the course.

Weekday classes start at 6:30pm and end at 9:30pm. Regardless of the number of students presented, course instructor will begin class by 6:35pm at the latest for weekday class. (5 minutes allowance only.) Class Break (10 – 15 minutes) will be scheduled before 8:15pm. Occasionally, courses may be offered on weekday afternoons and Saturday mornings.

Students who find long absence necessary because of illness or other unavoidable cause shall inform the Programme Chair in writing at the earliest opportunity. An application for leave of absence due to illness should be supported by medical certificate signed by a registered medical practitioner. If otherwise due to non-medical circumstances, such reasons should be clearly stated, and any related documentary evidence should be provided to support their application.

All classes take enrolled students only. There will be no auditing for students or anyone who are not enrolled in the class.

13. Deferral, Withdrawal and Discontinuation of Study

i) Deferral of Study

Deferral of study is not normally granted, except for compassionate and compelling reasons that may impact a student's wellbeing and progress of studies. Students who wish to apply for deferral of study should contact the Programme Chairperson in the first instance, and provide reasons (and any necessary documents) to support their application. Deferral of study is subject to the approval by the Programme Chairperson and the Board of Arts Faculty.

The maximum period of registration for full-time and part-time students is 2 academic years and 3 academic years respectively, which is subject to the approval of the Board of the Faculty on recommendation of the MALCS Programme Chairperson.

ii) Discontinuation of Study

According to the HKU Regulations and Syllabuses for MA, students may be required by the School Senate to discontinue from the programme under the following circumstances: A candidate who (a) is not permitted to present himself/ herself for re-examination in any paper or paper(s) in which he/ she has failed to satisfy the examiners or to revise and re-present his/ her dissertation or its equivalent requirement; or (b) has failed to satisfy the examiners in a second attempt in any course(s) or examination or in his/ her dissertation or its equivalent requirement; or (c) has failed more than two courses in the first attempt in an academic year may be required to discontinue his/ her studies under the provisions of General Regulation G12.

Further specifications concerning discontinuation of study should be referred to G11 and G12 of the General Regulations: <http://www.handbook.hku.hk/tpg/2022/>.

iii) Withdrawal of Study

Students who wish to withdraw from the programme at any time during the academic year should inform the Programme Chair and Arts Faculty office at the first instance. They should complete the "Withdrawal of Study Form" at http://www.ase.hku.hk/doc/withdrawal_1.pdf and return the completed form to the Arts Faculty office together with the Student Registration Card.

Students should note that they are liable to pay the annual composition fee, and/or any outstanding financial payments even their withdrawal of study occurs during the course of an academic year.

Overseas students are advised that deferral, withdrawal and discontinuation of study from the programme may affect their student visa.

14. Plagiarism

Plagiarism is a serious academic and disciplinary offence. You are warned that the University does not allow or tolerate plagiarism in any form of work submitted for assessment, including but not limited to dissertations, projects, written assignments, and other forms of coursework. Any quotation and/or citation of other people's work or ideas without clear and proper acknowledgement and documentation would risk being charged of plagiarism. Any student who commits plagiarism is liable to disciplinary action which can result in serious consequences - including failure of the course where plagiarism is found, and even expulsion from the University. Consult the following websites for further information on plagiarism:

- i) A booklet published by the University entitled "What is plagiarism?"
<https://tl.hku.hk/plagiarism/>
- ii) Arts Faculty's circular on plagiarism in assessments and examinations
<http://arts.hku.hk/current-students/undergraduate/assessment/plagiarism>

Students are required to submit their coursework to the Turnitin software for originality checking against proper citation or potential plagiarism. This requirement also applies to work completed for the capstone experience. Visit the following websites for more information about Turnitin:

- Turnitin at HKU
<http://www.lib.hku.hk/turnitin/>
- Turnitin
http://www.turnitin.com/en_us/home

15. Composition Fee

The composition fee shall be payable annually by two installments by dates to be prescribed by the Registrar, the first during August to October and the second in January.

Student invoices are issued through the HKU Portal email account. You may login the HKU Portal to check the account balance and payment records.

For instruction on viewing your finance-related information, please refer to the Student's Guide to the SIS at http://intraweb.hku.hk/reserved_1/sis_student/sis/SIS-reference-materials.html (Login is required)

For students who cannot login the HKU Portal, please approach the Finance and Enterprises Office (FEO) for the balance of your student account.

16. Transcripts and Certificates of Attendance

A transcript of academic record or certificate of attendance giving information on courses of study may be issued to a student or former student on application and upon payment of the prescribed fees. For more details, please visit the website of Academic Support and Examinations Section at <http://www.ase.hku.hk/asoffice/>.

17. Arrangements during Typhoon and Bad Weather

When Tropical Cyclone Warning Signal No. 3 or Red Rainstorm Warning Signal is in force, it should be assumed that all classes will be held as scheduled unless an announcement to the contrary has been made by the University.

When Tropical Cyclone Warning Signal No. 8 (or a higher number) or the Black Rainstorm Warning Signal is hoisted, the following arrangements will apply:

For classes not yet started: If either of the warnings is hoisted or in force at or after 3:00PM, all evening classes commencing from 6:00PM onward will be cancelled automatically;

For classes already started: When Tropical Cyclone Warning Signal No. 8 or above is hoisted, all classes will be suspended immediately. In the case of a Black Rainstorm Warning Signal, all classes, except those held outdoors, will continue.

18. Change of Personal Particulars

Students should ensure that their personal particulars are correct and up-to-date. Students are advised to notify the Department of Comparative Literature and the Arts Faculty office by email (malcs@hku.hk) immediately for any changes in telephone number(s), correspondence address and email addresses and update the information on their Portal.

19. Electronic Communication

The University will from time to time disseminate important information and notices (including fee invoices) to students on the HKU Portal and communicate with students using the @connect.hku.hk email account. You are therefore reminded of the responsibility to visit the HKU Portal (<https://hkuportal.hku.hk/>) regularly and check your emails in the @connect.hku.hk account via the "MyEmail" tab.

CORE COURSE

CLIT7005. Approaches to Literary and Cultural Studies (9 credits)

This course aims to examine the changing notion of culture and the paradigmatic shifts in literary and cultural theory over the past few decades. Informed by Western Marxism, structuralism, postmodernism, feminism, postcolonialism and psychoanalysis, it maps out a landscape of critical perspectives on culture within the context of modernity and globalization. It assesses the potentialities and constraints of the cultures of capitalism in a global context. It seeks out innovative ways of articulating the intricate relations among the idea of popularity, counter culture, and the public sphere. With key concepts such as “hegemony” and “structures of feeling,” it examines how culture can be perceived as a lived, active and transformative process. As popular artifacts straddle between art and industry, this course questions the strict division between high and low cultures, center and periphery, the mainstream and the independent/alternative. Drawing on literary and cultural texts produced and circulated within the deterritorialized, global space, this course focuses on the ways in which creativity, acts of resistance, and contestation of opinion enact processes of negotiation, struggle, challenge, and transformation. Topics for discussion may include film adaptation, the interfusion of high and low culture, technology and the democratization of culture, film genre, cultural myth and ideology, the global circulation of culture, and the notion of the public sphere.

Assessment: 100% coursework

ELECTIVE COURSES

CLIT7006. Fabrications of Identity (6 credits)

This course explores the formations of identity in film, literature, cultural history, theoretical discourse, and in daily life. It examines the ethics, power, and politics of representing identity and difference, especially cultural and sexual differences in various local, national, and global settings. Drawing upon perspectives from critical theory, cultural studies, feminism, gender and sexuality studies, queer theory, race and ethnicity studies, and postmodernism, the course engages with visual and literary texts as creative and dialogic acts manifesting interconnected identities that demand close reading, intertextual analysis, and cross-disciplinary referencing. Topics include: identity, agency, and representations of differences; femininities, masculinities, and queer identities; self and other, racial, and post/colonial identity; formation, negotiation, and fabrication of Chinese identity in the context of Greater China (diaspora as well as post/national identities); and postmodern identities. A wide range of selected texts will be studied for their imaginative, innovative, and progressive staging of alternatives that speak to and counteract the given identities of monocultures and taken-for-granted-ness from various essentialisms.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7007. The Art and Politics of Narrative (6 credits)

If narrative is related to storytelling, this course focuses on the art and politics of storytelling. What underpins the central focus of the course is the complex relation among representations of identity, ideology, history, and human agency. By engaging with different modes of storytelling, we will learn how a universal cultural practice becomes highly particular. The course examines a variety of narratives across a range of cultures, genres, and media. The course also introduces ways of reading them from theoretical, philosophical and cultural perspectives. Students will learn to read narratives within their historical and cultural context with the help of different theoretical frameworks such as Marxism, psychoanalysis, and feminism. Storytelling is how humans make meaning, and interpreting narrative is yet another form of retelling a story. We will study the art and politics of narrative by examining poetics, seriality, and representation in storytelling through different media and cultural contexts.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7008. From Colonialism to Globalization (6 credits)

This course addresses the cultural, intellectual and historical effects of what is arguably the dominant story of the last several hundred years: the emergence of, resistance to and eventual transformation of the modern, global system of colonialism. By the 1930s, 85 percent of the world was at one point a colony or ex-colony; this is to say that the world, from the "local" places of the South and East to the metropolises of the West, has been un-formed and re-formed by the experience and structures of colonialism and its afterlives. This course uncovers some of this history and complexity by examining foundational texts, concepts and ongoing debates within the study of colonialism, decolonization, and what is often thought of as the "new" era of globalization or unimpeded capitalism. Readings can range from classic colonial literature to prototypical postcolonial films, but will also include some of the key statements from the leading critics of colonialism and capitalism. Key terms might include but are not limited to: nationalism, colonial discourse, hegemony, Third World, orientalism, subalternity, hybridity, imperialism, difference, sovereignty, neoliberalism.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7009. Modernity and its Paths (6 credits)

What is 'modernity'? When is/was 'modernity'? What do modernity's aesthetic and political forms look like? This course will examine literary, philosophical, and political texts that wrestle with the notion of 'modernity'. These texts are often marked by literary experimentation, abstraction, and a concern for the intersection between philosophy and literature. Traditionally many scholars suggested that modernity 'began' in Europe and spread outwards around the world. More recently, scholars from Africa, South Asia, and East Asia have argued against this, though in different ways. This course will explore 'modernity' and 'modernism' as it took place around the world in the first half of the twentieth-century. We will read novels and philosophical texts from various 'modernities' and 'modernist' movements from Europe, North America, Africa, and Asia.

Given the rapid rise of forms of the new, discourse on modernity has never been more current. This interdisciplinary graduate course raises questions about the origin, development, and present relevance of the term 'modernity' in global contexts. The course poses questions about the definition and intersection of modernity with the temporal category of the 'avant-garde', also in relation to 'modernism', an art-historical and social formation.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7010. Questioning Sexual Difference (6 credits)

Sex, gender and sexuality are never-ending topics in literary and cultural studies that haunt and mesmerize scholars and layman alike. To "question sexual difference", as the course title suggests, essentially entails an exploration on themes and subject matters related to human sexuality. In The Second Sex (1949), the French feminist Simone de Beauvoir puts forward: "One is not born, but rather becomes a woman." In this course, we will use this statement as a starting point to investigate some of the basic yet core questions in the study of gender and sexuality: What does it mean to say that a person is born male or female? How does one "become" a man or a woman? How are gender and sexual identities formed, represented, and challenged? Why do differences matter, after all? We will cover a wide range of topics, including but not limited to romance and body, pornography and sexual desire, feminism, queer identities, and camp aesthetics. By drawing on films, literature, popular culture, and global and postmodern cultural phenomena, this course will bring students on a vibrant gender and sexual ride that offers them the opportunity not only to reflect upon the topics academically, but also personally. The objective is to engage students to critically analyze certain commonly held assumptions about sex, gender and sexuality as found in different types of discourses and popular media. Teaching activities include lectures, presentations, discussion and sharing sessions, workshops and seminars, as well as flipped classroom, and students are therefore expected to be participative in an interactive setting. Prerequisite of the course: open-mindedness.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7011. Hong Kong and Beyond (6 credits)

This course explores Hong Kong culture in various local, national and global contexts in comparison with cities in China and other parts of the world. Through analyzing selected socio-cultural phenomena, literary, filmic and other cultural texts and sites, we examine how the forces of modernization, nationalism, colonialism and globalization have affected the shifts in cultural and political dynamics, and have prompted the changes in the imagination and re-imagination of urban cultural politics. We may draw from theoretical approaches and critical concepts of various disciplines and persuasions. Topics covered may include the questions of history and agency; the cultural tropes of crisis, hybridity, transition and transgression; personal, collective memories and urban affectivities; critical cultural policy and the politics of urban space; the spectacles of urban renewal, tourism, consumption and popular culture; and, everyday life politics, local cultural resistance and decolonizing alternatives. Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7012. Dissertation Seminar (6 credits)

Students who opt for dissertation-writing must take this course.

This seminar supports students as they face the challenges of doing independent literary, film, and cultural studies scholarship as they prepare to write their dissertations. In order to help students in the initial stages of their dissertation research, this course begins with an overview of critical methods currently in use that can be applied to the analysis of a variety of cultural texts. Taking the text, textual strategies, intertextuality, and discourse as starting points, discussion will move from the definition of an object of study to practical critique within the theoretical parameters of literary and cultural studies. The course revolves around student-led presentations, workshops, debates, panel presentations, and lectures arising from issues and concerns generated by the students' research. Students will analyze key concepts arising from their exploration of the scholarly literature on their dissertation topics, compare the strengths and weaknesses of various research methodologies, and embark on the research for their own project. Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7013. Postmodernism (6 credits)

What is postmodernism and how does it converse with today's world? This course will explore a wide variety of phenomena characteristic of late 20th century culture. Notions such as fragmentation, irony, pastiche, playfulness, unpredictability, hyperreality, etc. will be examined. Making use of the city as a guiding image, we will ask how postmodernism inflects questions of the stability of knowledge, the meaning of the subject, and the spectacle of the postmodern world. Themes of memory and desire, concepts of space and temporality, constructs of gender and race, will be explored through the many mediums including but not limited to films, music, and performance art. The dynamics of a constantly reshaped connection between knowledge, sensation, language and the social contexts of the body will be closely examined. This course will also weave in contributions from Performance Studies and Feminist Studies to complicate the narrative, to blur the gaze, and offer a fresh, dynamic examination of the Postmodern in conversation with this unstable post-COVID world. Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7014. Film and Popular Culture (6 credits)

How do we explain our perpetual love and hate of popular culture, and how is the "popular" related to our everyday experiences? What does "popular" mean in a "serious" discourse, and can we "popularize" the sophisticated? This course looks into various aspects of popular culture and everyday life from the perspective of cultural studies to examine the intricate relations between cinema and popular culture. The tension and relationship between the popular and the artistic will be investigated in connection to subject matters like high and low culture, class structure and the popular arts, authorship, stardom and fandom, film genre, cultural myth and ideology, and the global production and circulation of film culture. Through the analysis of examples from the cinema of various international traditions, and with specific emphasis on the multifaceted relations between cinema and popular culture, the course will explore how in some instances popular cinema is always in a dialectical relationship with what we might call "counter/art/independent" cinema, while on other occasions, the popular and the independent cannot be easily separated.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7016. Contemporary Chinese Literature and Film (6 credits)

This course will examine contemporary literary and filmic texts from Mainland China, Taiwan, Hong Kong and the Chinese diaspora. Students will read representative short stories, essays, poetry, critical texts, and view selected films from the Post-Mao period to present. Texts will introduce students to major intellectual currents and literary and film movements of this period, including socialist and critical realism, modernism, postmodernism, and nativism. This course will also explore how forces of colonialism, urbanization, and globalization have drastically changed these Chinese societies. Students are expected to use literary, cultural and various interpretive theories to examine the historical changes taking place in Chinese societies over the past few decades, to understand the social problems and cultural aspirations that the Chinese have been preoccupied with, the patterns of urban life associated with various forms of consumption, and to approach those changes from both a historical and global perspective.

CLIT7018. Realism/Surrealism (6 credits)

Through a selection of literary and visual narratives, the course explores the intricate relation between realism and surrealism in culture and the arts. The first portion deals with some fundamental issues in the debates surrounding realism: mimesis, reality and alienation effects as well as the political unconscious. The second half turns to literary and filmic genres which are normally not grouped under the rubric of realism. Focus shifts to the fairy tale, ghost story, mockumentary, quasi-realism, and science fiction film. With this variety of fantastic narratives, the course continues to reflect upon questions of realism raised in the first module by focusing on issues related to defamiliarization, the architectural uncanny, and crisis consciousness.

CLIT7019. World Cinema (6 credits)

This course explores the meaning of "world cinema" in the context of global cultural economy and global screen cultures. Selected films from the 20th and 21st centuries will be included with the intention to historicize their aesthetic contribution, to examine film form and authorship, and to attend to (trans)cultural trends and issues. It will discuss the changing roles of national cinema, art cinema, and festival films in world cinema studies. It will also review scholarship on naming, mapping, categorizing, and theorizing that shape current understanding of global screen cultures. The course requires students to engage critical concepts and frames to discuss film and cinema practices, aesthetics, movements, and politics. Students will also examine the tenets and exemplary films of neo-realism, art cinema, Third cinema, accented cinema, and slow cinema. Experiential learning exercises include collaboration to design a virtual film festival and brochure as well as peer review of world cinema research.

CLIT7020. Introduction to Research Methods (6 credits)

This is a course to introduce master-level students to theory-informed research methods in literary, film, and cultural studies. It gives a survey of the key concepts, methods, debates, and authors as they pertain to the research and analysis of texts, contexts, and world. Questions for inquiry include: How do scholars engage theory and method to examine narratives, discourse, form, genre, ideology, subjectivity, and imaginary? How do analyses of texts, practices, reception, production contexts engage cultural economy, power, politics, and/or historiography? Research methods covered in the course include: narrative analysis, formal analysis, authorship studies, genre studies, discourse analysis, ideological analysis, and ecocritical analysis.

CLIT7021. Approaches to Cinematic Arts (6 credits)

This course introduces theoretical and critical approaches to the study of film in an international and interdisciplinary frame. It acquaints students with selections from classical, contemporary, and postcolonial theories of film and cinema, with emphasis on the revisions and interventions informed by feminisms, Third Cinema, postcolonialism, postmodernism, queer theory, and digital culture. Beginning with readings on visibility and critical visions, the course introduces different theories and positions on the questions of medium specificity, film's relation with the other parts, concepts used in film criticism, theories and practices of cinema, and cinematic arts in digital humanities.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7022. Screen Documentaries (6 credits)

The course introduces screen documentary ethics, modes, practices, and politics in international and interdisciplinary frames. Starting with readings on documentary authenticity, ethics and voice, students will attend to key aspects of the documentary including voice, evidence, authority, storytelling, portrait, and testimony. Students will examine the role of the documentarian, the critical issues regarding representation, and the key features in various documentary modes (observational, expository, participatory, poetic, reflective, performative). Lectures, viewings, and discussions will emphasize critical understanding of documentary in cultural and historical contexts. Students will do close reading of documentaries, present their commentaries on readings and documentaries during class discussions, and complete an essay that investigates and compares the representational and ethical issues in two different documentary modes with the reasons to adopt one of the modes for a digital documentary.

The course includes workshops on documentary storytelling and hands-on practice. This part includes developing an idea, selecting an approach, doing field research and participatory observations, conveying a perspective or telling a story with non-fiction materials, and using basic videomaking skills. Students are required to complete a group-based digital documentary to gain hands-on experience by applying what they have learned from the films, readings, class lectures, and discussions. Completing the group project would take up several blocks of time that would add up to the normal hours required to complete assignments and requirements.

CLIT7023. Ecological Imaginations in Literary and Visual narratives (6 credits)

This course will examine significant ideas, debates, and questions of ecocriticism, environmental studies, animal studies, and posthumanism through selected contemporary literary and visual narratives. We will explore, together, how to critique the frameworks that have set "nature" and "culture" at odds with one another, as well as consider how we might generate new forms of creative action in response to our local and global ecological conditions that entwine the local and the global.

Students will make use a range of interdisciplinary methods from literature, performance, and visual arts to engage with ecocritical concepts, such as deep ecology, ecofeminism, queer ecocriticism, disability ecocriticism, and green activism to help us deepen our understanding and map new ways forward in both our everyday and professional contexts.

CLIT7024. Advanced Cultural Studies: Context, Culture, Critique (6 credits)

This course serves as an advanced introduction to Cultural Studies. Cultural studies is an interdisciplinary mode of scholarship that seeks to produce critical but useful knowledge. It is based first of all in a radical contextualization that presumes an ability to situate texts, people, and problems within a certain historical and social framework that draws on various forms of 'theory' or ways of seeing. As a mode of inquiry it foregrounds not a particular genre or medium or discipline like literature or film or, say, sociology, but particular problems and issues that matter or have mattered in history. What matters, and to whom, is a large and open question that must be addressed. But within cultural studies there is a commitment to culture as "ordinary" and "common" as opposed to merely esoteric or aesthetic or privileged or individualized. Cultural studies draws on the textual and semiotic skills from literary, film, and media studies but it does not confine itself to texts. It seeks instead to ground itself in something variously called "culture," everyday life, lived experience, social reality, political or group struggle, the historical present, and so on: these too are all terms that must be scrutinized; but they also point to the essentially social and 'real' world that cultural studies seeks to understand and intervene in.

This course will introduce the above template for doing cultural studies, through both theoretical and practical readings. It will read theoretical or methodological texts. It will also offer one or several case studies or examples, classic or contemporary, of 'achieved' or actual cultural studies. Cultural studies is in fact not easy to do but is or should always be worthwhile or useful to someone or something. Literary or cinematic or other texts may also be used to illustrate the problems and methods of cultural studies.

CLIT7026. Special Topics in Eco-criticism (6 credits)

In our times, places like the Netherlands/the Rhine Delta, and Hong Kong/the Pearl River Delta, reveal the crises of the contemporary in very different ways. Located at the opposite sides of the Eurasian continent, formed by very different (geological, meteorological, humanistic) powers, their realities show many differences, but also unexpected similarities. Doing scientific and artistic research at both locations, this course aims to help students to be familiar with the complexities of these 21st century crises, how they are reflected in social, political and environmental uncertainties, and how they lead to civic action. It engages issues such as: how to negotiate on what challenges the current state of academic knowledge and call upon all of our creative and speculative capacities to imagine society differently, to question its Modernist or Capitalist systems of production and consumption. It is important to stress that all of this will be done by placing centre not the human being, but the entire Delta with its multiple networks: its human and non-human inhabitants, the elements, and all of the powers engaged in its complexity. Teaming up with a series of technological and artistic initiatives in both sites, it engages with local communities and stakeholders, and searches for ways to involve them actively in the research that we undertake. This course is a unique transdisciplinary, transnational and inclusive program, firmly rooted in the urgent matters of today.

Assessment: 100% coursework

CLIT7027. Participatory Media and Cultural Studies (6 credits)

This course explores the rise of participatory culture and its impact on media and cultural studies. This course examines the ways in which digital technologies and the internet have enabled individuals to participate in the creation, distribution, and consumption of media content, and the implications of this for cultural production and consumption. Through a range of theoretical and practical approaches, students will explore topics such as fan and remix culture, online communities, social media, digital storytelling and global media activism, among others. Rather than "reading" a particular type of institutionalized media form, this course focuses on exploring a wide range of knowledge products (e.g.

Textual inscriptions, community-produced films, video art, photographs, audios, exhibitions, interactive media products, digital stories etc.). Throughout the course, students will acquire the skills to navigate the question of authorship, positionality, audience, and circulation as they engage with challenging subjects of representation — such as sensorial experiences, taboos, memories of violence and trauma, mental health and politically charged cross-cultural dialogues.

CLIT7996. Capstone Experience: Portfolio/Individual Project (15 credits)

CLIT7997. Capstone Experience: Dissertation (15 credits)

Students who have received a B+ grade or above in 4 or more courses, and with the approval by the MALCS Programme Chairperson, may choose to do

1) a dissertation of approximately 10,000 words or

2) an individual project – an approved creative work under supervision and a written report of around 5,000 words; as partial fulfilment of the requirements for the MA degree.

Students who opt for dissertation writing must take the elective “CLIT7012 Dissertation Seminar”. Students who opt for portfolio and individual project must attend special sessions and/or workshops.

All students have the option to compile a portfolio of coursework for the MA curriculum. Students choosing the Portfolio option are required to revise at least two previous MALCS papers into a final paper of approximately 10,000 words. Students who opt for portfolio/individual project must take another elective course in lieu of CLIT7012.

Dissertation involves 360 hours of learning activities which include research, writing workshops, dissertation writing as well as regular supervision, emails and feedback on draft materials.

Portfolio/Individual Project involves 300 hours of learning activities which include mini-lectures, research, library workshop, writing workshops as well as regular supervision, emails and feedback on draft materials.

For full-time students, the capstone experience must be completed by the prescribed deadline in the academic year of study and its title should be submitted for approval by March 1 of that year.

For part-time students, the capstone experience must be completed by the prescribed deadline in the second academic year of the study and its title should be submitted for approval by March 1 of that year.

CREATIVE PRACTICES AND EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING COURSES

Student can only choose ONE 3–credit course with prior approval.

CLIT7801. Creative Cinematic Practice: Experiential Learning in Museum and Film Festival (3 credits)

This course aims to integrate classroom critical study of cinematic art with on-site experiential learning in museums and film festivals. Students are challenged to synthesize the knowledge and understanding from readings, lectures, screenings, and/or master classes into an informed, exhibition-conscious, and reflective approach to the art of cinema and the moving images. Students who take this course will become an M+ member, attend screenings and discussions once per month starting from October to December in 2023, February to April in 2024. During the course, students will write short reflective papers on the films they watch together. The reflective papers will be read and commented on by an instructor. The submitted journals will be compiled into a portfolio at the end of the course. Distinguished portfolios will be selected and published on MALCS website. Full-time students who take this course would also have the opportunity to apply for internship in the Spring.

CLIT7802. Creative Cultural Practice: Experiential Learning in Museum and Literary Festival (3 credits)

This course aims to integrate classroom critical study of literary art with on-site experiential learning in museums and literary festivals. Students are challenged to synthesize the knowledge and understanding from readings, lectures, and/or workshops into an informed, exhibition-conscious, and reflective approach to the art of literature and culture. Students who take this course will become an M+ member, attend book talks and discussions once per month starting from October to December in 2023, February to April in 2024. During the course, students will write short reflective papers on the books they read together. The reflective papers will be read and commented on by an instructor. The submitted journals will be compiled into a portfolio at the end of the course. Distinguished portfolios will be selected and published on MALCS website.

Appendix B

Grade	Standard	Grade Point	General Expectations of Student Performance
A+ A A-	Excellent	4.3	Excellent result. A thorough grasp of the subject as demonstrated by original, creative or exceptionally astute analysis and synthesis of ideas or critical interpretation of texts/issues/other course content or reflection on learning experience. Ample evidence of familiarity with relevant reading and research as well as very effective organizational, rhetorical and presentation skills as appropriate to the assessment task. Students display excellent communication skills in areas such as grammar, vocabulary, oral and aural competencies.
B+ B B-	Good	3.3	Good to very good result. A good to very good grasp of the subject as demonstrated by generally persuasive analysis and synthesis of ideas or critical interpretation of texts/issues/other course content or reflection on learning experience. Some evidence of a generally sound understanding of relevant reading and research as well as effective organizational, rhetorical and presentation skills as appropriate to the assessment task. Students display good to very good communication skills in areas such as grammar, vocabulary, oral and aural competencies.
		2.7
C+ C C-	Satisfactory	2.3	Satisfactory to reasonably good result. A reasonable grasp of the subject as demonstrated by some analysis of ideas or interpretation of texts/issues/other course content or reflection on learning experience. Familiarity with relevant reading and research is adequate but tends to be rather descriptive with little evidence of critical reflection but organizational, rhetorical and presentation skills, as appropriate to the assessment task, still contribute to overall coherence satisfactorily. Students display reasonable communication skills in areas such as grammar, vocabulary, oral and aural competencies.
		1.7
D+ D	Pass	1.3	Barely satisfactory result. A minimal grasp of the subject with little analysis of ideas or critical interpretation of texts/issues/other course content or reflection on learning experience. Hardly any evidence of familiarity with relevant reading or research as required for the assessment task. Ideas presented are generally not well organized or well argued but still largely comprehensible. Students display minimal communication skills in areas such as grammar, vocabulary, oral and aural competencies.
		1.0
F	Fail	0	Unsatisfactory result. A poor grasp of the subject with negligible or largely inaccurate analysis of ideas or interpretation of texts/issues/other course content or reflection on learning experience. A general lack of familiarity with relevant reading or research, as required for the assessment task. Work presented is poorly organized, largely irrelevant and incoherent. Work fails to reach the level expected for a master's curriculum. Students display poor communication skills in areas such as grammar, vocabulary, oral and aural competencies. Plagiarism or non-submission of coursework will also result in a Fail.

MALCS 2023-24 Guidelines for Portfolio

(1) Purpose of the Portfolio

The Portfolio is an option to complete the final requirement for the MA in Literary and Cultural Studies. Students choosing the Portfolio option are required to revise at least two previous MALCS papers and turn them into a final paper of approximately 10,000 words. Similar to the Dissertation, the Portfolio option allows students to demonstrate knowledge gained in the MALCS programme, and also demonstrate analytical and written communication skills in ways that can be useful beyond the programme.

(2) Essential Elements of the Portfolio

Theoretical or Conceptual Framework

The Portfolio requires students to demonstrate application of analytical skills to important topics in the MALCS coursework, based on analysis of literary and cultural texts. Students should work with the advisors to choose topics of importance and relevant theoretical frameworks, helping them to identify a general problem to be clearly set out in the mission statement. Conceivably, the overall conceptual or theoretical framework shall be broad yet focused enough to encompass the specific topics and approaches in the revised papers.

The Mission Statement

The mission statement (1,000 words) of the Portfolio should be based on a strong understanding and thorough review of the theory and practice related to the chosen topic. Hence, the statement should be informed by appropriate academic references within the field.

Review of Literature

The literature review (1,000 words) should survey and assess a variety of sources of information including books, journals, URL's and other relevant materials. A minimum of 12 references are required.

Revision of Papers

Revision of the academic papers shall start with designing an overall conceptual or theoretical framework, which shall guide the revision of papers.

Paper revision should include: writing the introduction to demonstrate relationship with the chosen theoretical or conceptual framework; additional literature review to establish scholarship connecting the framework and the selected corpus/texts for the essay, restructuring arguments, reorganizing and rewriting paragraphs, adding new analysis of texts when relevant, and revising the papers' conclusions. The portfolio should demonstrate evidence of substantial paper revision.

Formatting

Papers should follow MLA style. Use parenthetical documentation and include a list of works cited.

(3) Proposal for the Portfolio

Students will complete an initial proposal for the portfolio that includes: a) literature review; b) brief discussion of the concepts to justify the choice of the overall conceptual or theoretical framework; c) the revisions for each paper to substantiate the overall framework; d) plan for completing the revisions. The student shall refine and submit a revised portfolio proposal to the programme officer and the supervisor after the initial meeting with the supervisor. A copy of the revised portfolio should also be sent to the supervisor. Failure to submit the final portfolio proposal on May 1 would automatically result in 20% grade reduction for the final project result.

(4) Generic Version of the Form of a Portfolio

Title

(E.g. Portfolio: Essays Devoted to A Postcolonial Study of Hong Kong Culture)

Abstract (250 words)

Write a paragraph or two summarizing the important points of the Portfolio.

Mission Statement (1,000 words)

- Inform the reader about the general problem to be studied
- Introduce the theoretical framework that you are going to employ in the Portfolio
- Present the ways in which the essays you have revised and edited contributed to your understanding of literary and cultural studies within the context of the MA Programme

Literature Review (1,000 words)

Present a literature review that identifies and assesses the important works supporting the theoretical framework for the portfolio.

Content (7,500 words) *

At least two revised individual papers (each of 2,500 to 3,000 words) from different courses, each paper presents the relevant concepts, approaches, focus, and texts to substantiate the study of the selected topic. See the above Revision of Papers section for revision requirements. Discussion and assessment of ideas from a minimum of 8 cited references are required for each portfolio paper.

Conclusion (500 words)

Works Cited List

[5] Important Dates

Submission of Title and Initial Proposal of Portfolio: March 1, 2024

Submission of the Final Proposal of Portfolio: May 1, 2024

Submission of Portfolio: August 1, 2024

* Students may also write new essays that are related to the topic of their choice. They are encouraged to discuss with the Portfolio advisor in greater details.

MALCS 2023-24
Guidelines for Individual Project

Individual Project: Creative Project

Students will develop and produce an approved creative work under supervision.

The creative project may focus on one style/form of creative writing work, or include approved creative forms to be integrated into the final work. For example, the student might mix poetic forms and visual expressions for presentation on a digital platform on the Web including text and images. Or produce and complete an edited documentary or essayist film/media project (15-20 minutes) as a form of visual documentary/essayist writing.

Proposal: Before starting on the creative project, students will complete an initial proposal that describes the project, its title, its justification and objectives, the intended approach (style/form/subject) of the writing or the documentary/essayist project, a schedule for stages of completion with expected outcomes, and a short bibliography. The initial proposal will be due on March 1. The student shall submit a revised proposal on May 1 after the initial meeting with the supervisor. A copy of the revised proposal shall also be sent to the supervisor. No change of project type will be approved after May 1. Failure to submit the final proposal would automatically result in 20% grade reduction for the final project.

Final Project and Report: In addition to the completed Creative Project, students will write a report on the relationship between the project and the coursework (around 5,000 words).

The written report shall consist of these elements: justification of the project, explication of the key ideas, literature review to demonstrate conceptual support for the design and content of the project, the process and context in implementing the project, critical reflections on the project's relationship to the coursework and academic study in literary and cultural studies and/or film/screen studies, and any plans to disseminate the project result.
